

WORKSHOP TOPICS & FACILITATORS

WORKSHOP 1.

How do we develop common agendas and stronger partnerships across the historic and built environment sector?

Raymond Young, Non Executive Director, Historic Scotland

Raymond Young, visiting professor to the Department of Architecture, University of Strathclyde and chair of Architecture and Design Scotland.

WORKSHOP 2

How do we best integrate our aspirations for the protection and enhancement of the built heritage with our aspirations for quality in new development and place making?

Jim Mackinnon, Chief Planner and Director for the Built Environment, Scottish Government

Jim became Director for the Built Environment in January 2001 with responsibility for architecture and place making, building standards and planning.

WORKSHOP 3

How can we ensure quality and sustainability for Scotland's architecture, whether old or new?

Ann Marie Stannard, Non Executive Director, Historic Scotland

Ann Marie Stannard, is a partner in the Growth Company Team Ltd and a non-executive director of Human Factors Analysts Ltd.

WORKSHOP 4

How might we develop and promote innovative projects and approaches which deliver value in Scotland and which promotes our expertise across the world?

Bob Stewart, Non Executive Director, Historic Scotland

Bob Stewart is a Fellow of the Royal Town Planning Institute, a Member of the Chartered Institute of Management and Director of Environmental Services with Moray Council.

WORKSHOP 5

How can Historic Scotland change its approach and working methods to further release the potential of Scotland's historic environment and to further support other parts of the sector?

Marc Ellington, Non Executive Director, Historic Scotland

Marc Ellington, a Marketing, Tourism and Management Consultant and project coordinator of the Scottish Traditional Skills Training Centre.

WORKSHOP 6

How can we work with local authorities and others to develop their capacity in relation to both new design and the historic environment?

David McGibbon, Non Executive Director, Historic Scotland

David Campbell McGibbon of the project consultancy McGibbon Associates and former Group Finance Director of Grampian Holdings.